Mass of Anointing

20th May 2023 @ 10:30am
Followed by Morning Tea

All welcome

Sacrament of the Anointing of the Sick.

Suffering and illness have always been among the greatest problems that trouble the human spirit. Christians feel and experience pain as do all other people; yet they know from Christ's words that sickness has meaning and value for their own salvation and for the salvation of the world. They also know that Christ who during his life often visited and healed the sick, loves them in their illness. In the Sacrament of Anointing of the Sick the Church continues the ministry of healing exercised by Christ himself.

The anointing is offered in the case of serious or chronic illness that is often debilitating to the sufferer. It is appropriate to anoint the elderly who have become weakened; sick children may be anointed if they can sufficiently understand what the Sacrament offers them. Anointing can be given more than once even in the same illness.

When serious illness afflicts someone, the Anointing of the Sick should not be delayed.

The Catholic Charity Aid to the Church in Need has launched their "Nigeria: Young. Faithful. Crucified" global campaign. Did you know that in 2022 a total of 5,014 Christians were killed for their faith in Nigeria? These were not Nigerians who happened to be Christian, but rather, their allegiance to the Lord saw them face a brutal death. This is a Church being crucified with Christ. REFLECTION

“The Father... will give you ...the Spirit of truth.”

Percival Lowell was an American businessman who developed an interest in astronomy. In 1894, he established the Lowell Observatory in a high, remote part of Arizona – ideal conditions for observing the planets. He quickly became highly respected for his work in astronomy, and in particular, for fifteen years, he studied the planet Mars, and was hugely influential in spreading the long-held belief that there was, or had been, intelligent life on Mars – creatures who were responsible for the so-called “canals” of Mars. He said that these canals were red and that they seemed to move. He was, of course, totally wrong. We now know that there are no such canals on Mars. It is thought that what Lowell was, in fact, seeing was not canals on Mars but an image of the shadows of the red veins in his own eyes.

The point is that Lowell was so famous that few people dared contradict him. You can still find old atlases that illustrate these supposed canals on Mars. Lowell had no friend close to him who would speak the truth to him.

In last Sunday’s Gospel, Jesus asserted that he is “the Way, the Truth and the Life”. In his dialogue with Pontius Pilate before he was condemned to be crucified, Jesus said that he came into the world “to bear witness to the truth”. Rather cynically, Pilate questioned whether such a thing could even exist: “Truth? What is that?” In so doing, Pilate embodied the spirit of our own age, which is so bedevilled with claims and counterclaims as to what is truth, particularly on social media. Is there such a thing as truth? And if so, how can we recognise it?

Since Jesus is “the Truth”, the search for truth is the search for Jesus himself. How do we recognise him? In today’s Gospel, we get a clue. Jesus promises to send another Advocate – we might say another friend – the “Spirit of truth”, the Spirit who will speak truth to us. Jesus says that we are able to know that Spirit because the Spirit is with us and even in us: a close friend indeed. This is the same Spirit Jesus himself received at his baptism – the Spirit or life of God. This is the Spirit who drove Jesus out to contend with the power of evil in the desert. It was the same Spirit who led Jesus to announce that, filled with the Spirit, he had come to bring “good news to the poor, to proclaim liberty to captives and to the blind new sight, to set the downtrodden free, to proclaim the Lord’s year of favour”. For Christians, all truth is rooted in God, in the very nature of God’s self. So the truth is essentially whatever aligns itself to God’s plan for humanity, whatever lends itself to building up God’s vision of life in the kingdom, life lived by the Spirit. The truth is ultimately what sets people free, authentically free.

Jesus told Pilate: “all who are on the side of truth listen to my voice”. In today’s Gospel, he says something very similar: “If you love me you will keep my commandments.” We know that we have heard the truth when our lives are in harmony with the one who is truth itself. When we live by Jesus’ commandments, we are living in truth. And his commandment is simple: “Love one another, as I have loved you.”

Do I recognise truth? Do I walk in the truth? The answer to that question is not simply a matter of reciting the correct credal statements. It is about the quality of my life: does my life reflect the truth of God? Am I a person who brings good news to others? Am I someone who gives new sight to those who live in darkness – the darkness of grief, loneliness, pain or sickness? Does my life set people free – from guilt, from fear, from oppression? Am I a person who not only helps to alleviate people’s poverty but empowers them to live with dignity? Am I a credible witness to the love of God? Does my life speak truth? When we can answer those questions positively, then we are able to give Pilate his answer, and we know that the Spirit – our advocate and friend – is speaking the truth both to our lives and through our lives.

“A Friendly Guide to Vatican II”

As background to any effort to take up Pope Francis’s invitation to study the documents of the Second Vatican Council, we have bought 20 copies of the book “A Friendly Guide to Vatican II” and it is now available for parishioners to borrow and return on an honour system. If you would like to read it, please treat it like a library book. To borrow, just note your name, phone number and the number of the book in the register that is beside the books. Take a copy, read it, then return it so that others may do the same.

Thanks for your cooperation.
